COLLEGE'S FUTURE BRIGHT DECLARES DEAN E. J. WILEY

Says Students Will Resist Wave of Demoralization

MORALS HIGH HERE

Writes Opening Article of Series for The Campus

The Campus having very courteously extended me an invitation to contribute an article on, "The Situation at Middlebury from the Dean's point of view." I can hardly overlook such an excellent opportunity for expressing my views on certain points.

At the outset I am glad to be able to say that never since I have been connected with the college has the future of the institution appeared so bright. In addition to the material expansion and financial strengthening of the past decade there has been a steady advance in quality of work. Admission standards and graduation requirements have been gradually but consistently raised and there has been an ever increasing willingness on the part of the student body to accept responsibility in promoting the smooth running of the college which is one of the most encouraging phases of our recent development.

The fact that we have now reached our capacity for a time at least and must limit attendance should mean greatly increased possibilities for development along the lines just mentioned. The increased competition for admission will soon exclude automatically those who can meet only the minimum entrance requirements and if, as I hope may be the case, our men are also selected as the the Rhodes Scholars with a view to "qualities of manhood, force of character, and leadership and physical vigour as shown by interest in outdoor sports or in other ways," there is sure to be a strengthening of the feeling of responsible citizenship in the college community and the student activities of all sorts should flourish as never before because every man will soon be a picked man.

My idea of an ideal college is one in which the faculty and officers can direct their efforts chiefly along constructive lines of work with the problem of discipline cut to a minimum and all matters of that sort handled by a self governing organization of the students. I believe that we have made excellent progress in that direction at Middlebury and that we have every reason to expect a near approach to the ideal in the future.

The magazines and newspapers have been filled of late with the writings and utterances of people of prominence directed against what one characterized the "laxity in manners and morals that is undermining the fiber and character of the coming generation" and repeated inquiries have come from magazine editors who were studying the situation in the colleges, as to whether, as one editor expressed it, on the basis of our experience at Middlebury we believe that society, especially the younger part of it, is undergoing a revolution in morals, in manners, or in both.

Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, Principal of Phillips Andover Academy, referring in a recent magazine article to the difficult fight which a young man must wage to keep morally clean said, "But always his greatest support has come from the restraining and ennobling in-

ERROR IN DEBATE REPORT WETHERELL CLUB STATES

The Wetherell Debating Club announces that information has been received that the report sent out in press dispatches from Middlebury and repeated in The Campus of March 29, to the effect that the judges in the St. Lawrence-Middlebury debate had decided unanimously in favor of Middlebury, was incorrect, and that the result should have been reported "two to one in favor of Middlebury". Commissioner Clarence H. Dempsey, who served as chairman of the board of judges, in rendering the decision, made no statement as to a split vote, and the inference was drawn that the judges were unanimous in their decision. In a letter under date of April 19, Commissioner Dempsey has written in answer to inquiry from Middlebury: "When the judges retired we took a formal ballot without debate, resulting in two to one in favor of Middlebury. There was no attempt on anyone's part to alter this vote, as there was apparently no reason why it should not stand as originally cast. We, the judges, decided that the result of the vote would be simply announced in favor of Middlebury without stating whether it was unanimous or otherwise." The Wetherell Debating Club regrets greatly that wrong inferences were drawn from Commissioner Dempsey's announcement of the decision of the judges, and is anxious to have the mistake corrected.

NORWICH INVADES MIDDLEBURY TODAY

Hastings Returned To Slab for 'Varsity

Cadet Aggregation Strong—Northeastern Here Saturday

A heavy assignment is in store for Coach Morey's wards this week, opening with the crack Norwich nine, which invaded the Blue's back yard this afternoon, and ending with the Northeastern aggregation Saturday afternoon. Both games should prove to be real battles.

Norwich has evidenced the fact that they have a strong team having defeated the University of Maine by a 4-3 score. On Monday the Maine nine administered a sound thrashing to the tune of 11-5 at Burlington to the U. V. M. swat artists. On the face of this dope it would seem that the Cadets had an edge on the U. V. M. outfit. The game today is the initial contest in the state championship series, and will decide the strength of the three leading contestants for first honors.

The probable line-up for today's game is as follows.

Middlebury	Norwich
Hastings, p.	l.f., Clark
Stockwell, l.f.	2b., Griffin
Klevenow, 2b.	s.s., Maher
Gallagher, 1b.	1b., Whetton
Timberman, r.f.	c., Hyland
Daley, 3b.	r.f., Clavin
Papke, s.s.	c.f., Hope
Drost, l.f.	p., Styles
Conley, c.	3b., Beamish

Just who the Coach will use on the mound in the Northeastern game is a matter of speculation. Probably either Witham or Herzig will work against the Bostonians. The team is anxious to avenge the one run defeat they received at the hands of the Northeastern nine on the spring training trip, and a fighting game from start to finish is anticipated.

ONE SEMESTER RULE FAVORED BY OGILBY

Is Gradual Working Out of One Year Rule

RULE IS A SUCCESS

Praises Work of College Presidents Association

In an interview granted a Campus reporter, President R. B. Ogilby of Trinity College placed himself on record as favorable to the one semester athletic rule, which he pointed out had worked very favorably at Trinity during the past year. He said that the one semester rule was simply a gradual as well as practical way of working out the one year rule. This regulation has also been placed in force at Wesleyan, Amherst and Williams.

"We put in the one semester rule," declared President Ogilby, "in the face of great opposition and apprehension on the part of graduates and undergraduates. It has not been in force a full year yet and you would find it hard to get any supporters for going back to the old system. The one semester rule has demonstrated its effectiveness in the first year of trial."

In support of this statement he said that he had received many statements from alumni of the college enthusiastically in favor of the rule. In addition to the one semester provision, Trinity maintains the eligibility rule and the one year migratory rule. The latter provision provides that a student may not transfer from another institution and participate in the athletic activities of the school without at least a one year residence in the college.

Dr. Ogilby affirmed that Trinity had had a better season in football this past year with the new ruling in force than they had formerly had. The freshmen had banded together and formed their own squad and team which had been a very great help to the 'varsity he said.

With regard to the one year migratory rule, President Ogilby said that "There is no question about a one year migratory rule. There is a very strong feeling among some colleges that we will very shortly have a rule that if a man has been a 'varsity athlete in one college and goes to another, he will never be allowed to compete even after a year."

Dr. Ogilby is very enthusiastic about the Association of College Presidents, recently formed in Springfield. He feels that the association will do much good, and that it will be a permanent body. "It must be remembered," said President Ogilby in concluding the interview, "that Trinity already has everything that was recommended at that meeting. We have no seasonal coaches, and our coaches are members of the faculty throughout the college year."

Cancellation of Three Games on Tennis Schedule Announced by Manager Lane

The 'varsity tennis team will not open the season with Holy Cross at Worcester today as previously announced, Manager Lane said this morning, and also stated that the last two dates of the season had been cancelled, owing to the change in the date of commencement. The two games which have been taken off the card were scheduled to have been played with R. P. I. on June 3rd and Clark College on June 5.

CIRCUIT CLOUT WINS CLOSE CONTEST FOR MIDDLEBURY 3-1 IN OPENER AT HOME WITH PROVIDENCE COLLEGE

Gallagher's Homer in The Eighth Breaks Tie And Gives 'Varsity Two Run Edge on R. I. Team

FIRST BALL THROWN BY PRES. MOODY

Slab Battle Features Opening Innings; Witham Holds Visitors to Seven Scattered Hits

Under a continuation of the arctic weather conditions which have prevailed in these regions for some time past, the Blue collected the season's opener on Porter Field last Thursday afternoon, trimming the Providence College nine to the tune of 3-1. This was but the result. The big event of the day came in the latter part of the eighth, when Gallagher '23, star first baseman for the 'varsity, placed the ball over the left fence, thus breaking the tie and giving Middlebury a two run edge on the Rhode Island diamond artists.

President Paul D. Moody officially opened the season when he threw the ball from the stand. Witham '24, who worked on the hill for Middlebury evidently looked upon this as the beginning of the end, for he proceeded to dispose of the first three men that faced him by permitting them to ground out.

When Hastings came to bat for the Blue, McCaffery, star slow ball artist of the Providence nine, was unable to locate the plate, and "P. O." proceeded to first a la a walk. He made second on a theft, but was unable to proceed any farther. The second round opened, and again Witham permitted the first two men to touch him, but the Rhode Islanders were unable to reach first. McGee was the third man to face him in this frame, and he collected a nice hit, reaching second on a clean steal. A hit by Kalliher brought him to third, but he thought best to try for home. Stockwell threw to Conley, and McGee failed to score. In the third Morrissey attempted to reach third but was caught on a throw from Gallagher to Daley.

In the fourth Klevenow led off for the Blue, moving to second on Gallagher's sacrifice, and to third on a wild throw by McCaffery. Timberman and Daley both fanned, and "Marsh" was left marooned with but one base to go.

In the fifth stanza Kalliher led off with a nice hit, and moved to third on sacrifices by Brenner and McCaffery. Holland flied out, ending the frame.

In the sixth Hastings led off for the Blue, sending a hot one down the third base line, and moving to second on Stockwell's sacrifice. He stole third but both Klevenow and Gallagher whiffed, leaving him stranded.

In the last of the seventh round, Timberman walked, and moved to second when Daley sent a low one out the third base line. Coleman threw wild to first and Daley kept on going. This occupied second and third. Papke sacrificed and brought Timberman home. Conley flied out to left and placed Daley on third. Witham failed to connect and the side retired.

McCaffery appeared first for Providence in the eighth and made a clean hit, proceeding to second on an error

PLAN INTER-FRATERNITY SING FOR JUNIOR WEEK

An inter-fraterntiy sing will be held under the auspices of the Waubanakees following the Merrill Prize Speaking contest next Wednesday night. Twenty men from each fraternity will participate in the event, and according to present arrangements, each group will sing some distinctive song.

The triangle in front of the McCullough Gymnasium has been selected as the spot best fitted for the affair, and as each group is called upon they will assemble on the steps and perform. Following the singing by each fraternity, the entire group will gather and sing several Middlebury songs.

EXHIBIT OF WORK JUNIOR WEEK PLAN

Faculty Provide Tour of Inspection Saturday

Committee of Juniors to Conduct Sub-Frosh Through Buildings

One of the prominent features of the Junior Week festivities will be a departmental exhibit of the work being done by the various branches of instruction, according to an announcement made by Professor S. E. Longwell, chairman of the committee having the plans in charge. The other two members of the committee are Professor Davis and Dean Wiley. Preparations for the exhibit are already under way.

The object of the exhibit, Professor Longwell stated, is to give the sub-freshmen some information as to the work of the college, and in such a way that it will prove both interesting and instructive. The committee consider it desirable that our visitors be entertained by athletic events and by other features so prominent during Junior Week, such as the "prom" and the play, as they have been in the past. But their chief aim in coming to Middlebury is to see the college itself and find out what it has to offer them as prospective students. All would acknowledge, doubtless, that the choice of a college should depend principally upon the educational opportunities found within its halls and the spirit that pervades the institution as a whole.

It is hoped that these exhibits will suggest, in some slight degree at least, the character of the work in the college courses. To this end the committee has requested all members of the faculty to place some of their exercises on exhibition. Opportunity will also be given to sub-freshmen to meet instructors in these courses on Saturday (May 13) from 1:15 p. m. to 2:45 p. m. This is the time set for a tour of inspection, beginning probably with the Old Chapel then to Warner Science Hall and finally to the Chemistry building. A committee of juniors will conduct the sub-freshmen through these buildings. Further announcement of the plans for this event will be made next week.

The New Board

With this issue of The Campus the new Board assumes control. Upon its shoulders will rest the responsibility of adopting efficient means of gathering and presenting the happenings of the college, and of fostering plans for the upbuilding, not only of The Campus, but of the institution as well which it represents.

The past year has witnessed notable achievements in the progressive steps taken by The Campus Board under the leadership of its energetic and efficient executive. Among the improvements made we find The Campus increased to five columns, thus meeting one of the important needs of a college paper, and the publication of feature articles dealing with matters of vital interest to the student body. The Saxonian was first publically advocated in the editorial columns of The Campus, and in a very short time definite plans for its publication were made. It will likely make its debut in a very few days. This is a record of achievements which any group of persons may well be proud of. Thus it becomes the privilege, as well as the opportunity, of the new Campus Board to cooperate in raising higher the standards of the college and of the student body. It will be our purpose to continue building upon the solid foundation laid by those who instituted The Undergraduate in 1820.

A declaration as to the editorial policy of The Campus will not be amiss at this time. In the first place it must be fair to all interests of the college, both individual and collective; it must be honest and without malice in its opinions; and it must devote itself at all times to the best interests of Middlebury and of the student body.

For Middlebury we stand for the achievement of the finest ideals. We shall endeavor to remember that the paper, as the organ of the student body, represents not a group, nor a class—but all of Middlebury—her spirit, her iedalism, her endeavors. This in brief is the platform of the new Board and upon these principles it will operate.

Finally it is well for every member of the student body, the alumni, faculty and administration to remember that The Campus desires to serve them. It desires to give them an account of the workings of the isntitution as a whole, and of plans for its future prosperity and advancement. If they neglect to cooperate with it, or do anything that will lessen its effectiveness, The Campus will, to just that extent, fall short of attaining the goal of its purpose.

The Cacpus has already opened its columns to constructive criticism, and it falls, as an individual obligation, upon everyone connected with Middlebury, to make suggestions which may lead to the correction of existing faults. The new Board, as did the former one, welcome such communications.

As we assume control we shall undoubtedly make mistakes, but we ask your assistance in helping to correct them. The most we can do is to pledge our unflinching loyalty to the best interests of our Alma Mater and of the student body, and to promise to spare no efforts in working for these interests.

Well Begun

The initial public performance of the Dramatic Club last Thursday evening is surely deserving of the highest praise and recognition. This successful debut of the club into the college world through the presentation of the two plays "The Maker of Dreams" and "The Pot Boiler", shows that in spite of its extreme youth the organization is well on its way toward becoming an important part of our college life.

This is especially true because the club fills a definite artistic need among the students. In this respect the Dramatic Club takes its place beside the musical and literary organizations, such as the Glee Clubs, the English Club and the "Saxonian", which furnish a needed means of emotional outlet through the arts. It thus performs an essential office in the life of the student.

But perhaps the greatest mission of the Dramatic Club is its less obvious one, for it is of great value not only in discovering and developing histrionic powers among its members, but in cultivating appreciation of and taste for the best in dramatic art, and in encouraging literary efforts in the form of original plays.

The Dramatic Club has already given us a glimpse of its great latent possibilities and we can certainly look forward confidently to many a manifestation of its growth and power in the future.

Delta Kappa Epsilon Formal Dance

The annual formal dance of Alpha Alpha chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon was held in McCullough Gymnasium on Saturday evening, April 29.

The gymnasium was very effectively trimmed with the fraternity colors and college and fraternity banners. A very pretty solo dance was given by Miss Bernice Bragg of Rutland, Vt. Music was furnished by Jack Symond's Orchestra of Albany, N. Y.

The Middlebury fraternity representatives were: Leighton T. Wade of Chi Psi, Charles W. Crew of Kappa Delta Rho, Ridley J. Norton of Delta Upsilon, Albert F. Gollnick of Alpha Sigma Phi, and George A. Cowles of the neutrals. Several alumni were present.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. Duane L. Robinson, Mrs. Bernice C. Yeaw and Mrs. Maud O. Mason acted as patrons and patronesses.

Delta Upsilon Party

Middlebury chapter of Delta Upsilon gave a very attractive informal dance in the Woman's Club rooms on Saturday evening. The hall was prettily trimmed with blue and gold streamers, and Delta Upsilon banners. A three-piece orchestra furnished music. The party was chaperoend by Professor and Mrs. Allen M. Cline.

The Periscope

Drifting

Drifting down the Otter's waters
In a bright canoe,
Drifting, like for four long winters
We were wont to do.

Driving downward, never fighting
Back the rushing tide;
Groping, clutching, never holding
Shores increasing wide.

So stand forth ye sons courageous—
Avoid like cause to rue;
Begin with steady strokes and strong
And follow each start through.

Still another week and no one has arisen to relieve us of our ill-fitting Cap and Bells. And lest any one be laboring under the delusion that we are to retain their custody for life, we hasten to declare with Young—

"Men may live fools; but fools they cannot die".

Clothes may or may not make the man, but, viewing the wake of another Banshee initiation, we wager that neither this generation or the next will submit to hairpinless styles for women.

Personally, we don't object to the aforesaid society's holding public initiations, but if present practices are to be continued in years to come we would like to suggest that the neophytes be furnished with identification tags for the convenience of the rest of the college.

Even Hepburn, stronghold of male folk as it is reputed to be, must chafe under the yoke of some form of feminine domination. Just as we were congratulating ourselves on the winter's accumulation of dust and cigar smoke that all but rendered opaque our bedroom window, down upon our humble suits swooped a host of spring house cleaners and destroyed the only weapon we had to combat the havoc wrecking effects of Old Sol on our late morning slumbers.

Canny Vermont is indeed slipping. Despite its long boasted thrift and frugality only one city in the whole state has adopted daylight-saving for the current year.

With the outcome still undecided of the present war between the Police Force and the Amalgamated Order of Thugs and Safe Blowers for the control of New York, we are not surprised to read that Hizzoner Hylan's proffered "Freedom of the City" was received with a smile by General Joffre during his recent visit.

For the benefit of those strangers who will be visiting us next week we offer the following unfailing guide in determining a man's year in college: viz. add one year to his credit for each half-inch shrinkage in his white flannels above the standard (freshman) ankle-length.

TALK ON FOREIGN TRADE WEDNESDAY

Speaker Declares Cultural Education Necessary

Requirements of Profession Told By Foreign Service School Dean

Dr. R. S. MacElwee of Washington, D. C., delivered a lecture on the vocation of "Foreign Trade" in the Chemistry Building last Wednesday evening. Dr. MacElwee has spent years of active work in Europe and is, at present, dean of the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University, as well as president of the International Bureau of Trade Extension.

"Foreign trade", affirmed Dr. MacElwee, "requires men who can converse in foreign languages. This is the prime need of the beginner in foreign trade, and Middlebury College is one of the few colleges in the country where modern languages are being taught right.

"There are three main fields in foreign trade," he declared: "first, clerks and sales managers for private business enterprises; second, trade commissioners under the Department of Commerce—their duty is to serve American business in general in foreign lands by finding markets, advertising, etc; third, consular service under the Department of State. Besides his many routine duties, the consul is expected to prepare and send in reports on trade and industry. The writing of these reports requires skill in English and a knowledge of economics. The social duties of the consul are many and, in the past, his salary has been inadequate oftentimes. These conditions however are improving.

"The work of a salesman in a foreign land is very interesting and stimulating. As he gains the ability to speak with all people in their own language, he becomes a citizen of the world. Americans in a foreign land stand for the whole United States and occupy a conspicuous place in that country. The opportunity is thus offered them to stand for American ideals and to cultivate a friendly feeling for America among other peoples. The salesman abroad is, generally speaking, well-paid.

"A good, cultural education is absolutely necessary for the man who enters foreign trade. He must be able to meet people on an equal footing and to talk intelligently with them. There is no service in the world where a man is thrown so absolutely on his own resources as in foreign trade. In order to live in a strange country, practically without friends, to speak a strange language and to meet strange people, a man needs high moral courage.

"The fact that the government is taking on new men in foreign trade work, that shipping is steadily improving, and that depression abroad is relaxing, all show that the prospects in foreign trade are good. The industry of the United States has outgrown the absorptive power of the home population and must expand into less developed sections. The call of the future", concluded Dr. MacElwee, "is for trained men to lead this expansion.

LEADERSHIP THEME OF VESPER SERMON

Inspiring Sermon By President Ogilby

Makes Analogy Between Biology And Religion—Text, Mark 10:17

President R. B. Ogilby of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., spoke in Vespers Sunday upon the attitude of the people of the present day toward the biological theory of variation, and upon the application of this theory to religion and education. As striking examples of variants, Dr. Ogilby cited Abraham Lincoln, who without dispute cut loose from established conventions; Joan of Arc, a gloriously successful variant; and King Arthur, who by his conception of chivalry, introduced an entirely new idea into his age and time.

Dr. Ogilby took his texa from St. Mark, 19:17 "—good Master, what shall do that I may inherit eternal life?" Jesus was a variant, and the young man who addressed Him thus, a type. He was unwilling to separate himself from worldly things to go under the leadership of Jesus, which demanded the variant character of self-sacrifice, willingness to take risks, and great submission.

Because Christ's variation was registered in the minds of humanity as a successful one, and because His cross, a symbol of death and disgrace, was turned into a symbol of glory and aspiration, Christ became a type.

President Ogilby expressed a deep regret that there were so many people of the present day adhering to the mediocre type, who might, if they had strength of mind and body, become successful leaders of democracy.

Dr. Ogilby graduated from Harvard University in 1902. He spent some time in the Philippine Islands where he did educational work. From there he came to this country and became a chaplain at West Point. Dr. Ogilby is now President of Trinity College at Hartford, Conn.

THE IDEAL DESSERT

Until recently ice cream was considered a luxury; now it is considered real food. Food and nutritious experts pronounce ice cream one of our very best foods. One quart of ice cream is equal in energy food value to

10 lbs. tomatoes
4½ lbs. peas
14 eggs
3¾ lbs. chicken or
1 2-5 lbs. beefsteak

Send to our store and try out a quart of ice cream. We know you will be pleased with it.

Lured by seductive advertising, a large audience witnessed, last Thursday evening, the first public presentation of plays by the Dramatic Club. They claim they were pleased. "The Maker of Dreams", the first play on the program, is a delightful phantasy, and was delightfully presented. All will acknowledge that Pierrette, with her charming ways, was the center of interest. She managed Pierrot with her usual exquisite tact and was, fortunately, ably assisted by the "Maker of Dreams", a middle aged, old-fashioned gentleman in glasses, who carried parlor ornaments, like bows and arrows, in his pockets, liked to put his feet on the fender, and admonished Pierrette that all men were fools. Pierrot bid fair to answer to the definition; but the Dream-man found him out also, and taught him his lesson through the eyes of Pierrette. They made a good ending. Apart? Ah, yes!

25 MEN TO MAKE TRIP TO CANTON

Team Tentatively Picked by Coach Announced

Brown Likely to Take More Entries—Doolittle Injured Monday

Coach Arthur M. Brown yesterday issued a statement containing the probable men to be taken on the St. Lawrence trip. The selections were made following try-outs held last Saturday and early this week on Porter Field.

The tentative selections for the following events have been made:

The Coach stated that he would probably take other men with him on the St. Lawrence trip. Doolittle sprained his ankle in jumping practice last Monday afternoon, and it is doubtful if he will be able to accompany the team on the trip.

First Down—
60 Years to Go!

THE Football Rules Committee can abolish a lot of things. But they can't legislate against having fun while you're shaving.

Tackle that generous tube of Williams' Shaving Cream from the Freshman's First Down to the Senior's hardy whisker defense, Williams' rich lather smoothes the way.

Football is a long way off, but the season for good shaving is on all the time—if you use Williams'. It softens and lubricates your skin and leaves your face refreshed—clean—invigorated.

Try it—tomorrow before chapel.

HOME RUN WINS LOCAL OPENER FOR 'VARSITY

by Conley. A two base hit by Holland completed the circuit for McCaffery, and gave Providence their only tally, as well as leveling the score.

Hastings collected his second hit in the last of the eights and moved to second on McGee's error. Klevenow sacrificed, placing Hastings on third. With two strikes called on him, Gallagher caught the pill on the tip of his bat, sending it over the left fence and scoring Hastings. The hit was good for a circuit, and marks the first home run made on Porter Field this season.

In the final inning Providence placed a man on second, while Witham walked the next man. Brennen's fly to Klevenow resulted in a double play, Gallagher finding Kalliher off first, and thus ending the contest.

The most spectacular play of the game was a fly by Stockwell to deep center in the last of the second. It was by far the longest hit made, but a rapid run by Beck gathered the ball. In reaching for ot he fell on his back, but the ball failed to touch the ground. By the time the catch was made Stockwell had passed second and was on his way to third.

DRAMATIC CLUB PLAYS PLEASE LARGE AUDIENCE

And yet not apart? Ah, yes! yes! To quote Mark Twain, "It was just too-too!" The three actors are to be congratulated; as is Mr. Williams, the manager, who designed and executed the attractive back-ground for the action.

It was too bad to follow so delightful a piece with so silly a thing as "The Pot-boiler". With one exception, at least, the cast did its best to redeem this fright from destruction. The exception wrecked it. The stage was cleared for action and it got it, from the sudden entrance over the footlights of the blushing young amateur playwright Mr. Wouldby, until his final, blood-curdling, "Shoot the Author". Miss Ivory, "so pure, and cool, and white", reminded one in her acting of nothing so much as of the delicate shades of coloring in a quart of Coon's harlequin ice-cream; until even her ice-cold heart was melted by the pathetic appeals of her doddering old papa, and she melted into Inkwell's arms. Mrs. Pencil was a vamp with a punch and a shriek. She had the driving force of a limited express and the whistle as well. She had to be choked off; and the villain, Inkwell, did it. In fact he was the only person in the cast who was entirely en rapport with the situation throughout. He was a villain with a punch, who got punched. Poor Mr. Ruler, the hero, was side-stepped by Pearl Ivory, the heroine, 'cause her papa told her to. Nothing during the presentation equalled in poignancy his exclamation of those original sentiments: "I am coming back! I am coming back!" Poor boy, did he not realize they never do?

The extravagances of Mr. Sud were beneath contempt. He seemed to have no sense of decorum. Even in Shakespeare's day it was deplorable to "tear a passion to tatters, to very rags,—to split the ears of the groundlings", and it is three hundred years since then. And yet this fellow Sud ripped passion up the back, stamped on its mutilated fragments, and tossed its remnants to the welkin's height. His acting was outrageous. He didn't know his part and covered his ignorance with noise. He blundered and bullied and bumped his way through the play like a one-lung flivver with all four tires flat. He exhausted himself and the audience. It is to be hoped that the Dramatic Club has learned its lesson once and for all. There are limits beyond which it cannot in discretion go. Why follow "The Maker of Dreams", by "The Maker of Night-mares?"

had sufficient moral courage to stand up against the fad of aping the actress type and who still furnish a wholesome inspiration to Middlebury men.

I have faith to believe that there are still enough good influences at work in this little college in the Vermont hills so that the men and women who make up its student body will be able to resist the wave of demoralization and will not consent to have the "ideals that have inspired to clean living and lofty thinking for generations, sneered at and proclaimed to be out of date."

The annual drawing for rooms in the men's dormitories was held Monday in Hepburn Social Hall.

The leader of the regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A. last Thursday night was the Rev. Henry C. Newell who spoke upon "The Call to Service". Mr. Newell mentioned the many calls to service which demand the attention of the college student and emphasized the importance of answering these calls while in college, as a means of preparation for rendering better service later on.

"Best Paid Hard Work in the World"

IS the way a JOHN HANCOCK salesman described his work. He is a college graduate and in five years has put himself at the very top of his business.

He never yet has called upon a prospect without a previous appointment. The best life insurance salesmen today work on that plan, making it a business of dignity, such as any worthy and ambitious college graduate can find satisfying to his mental needs, and highly remunerative as well.

The man above quoted is the John Hancock's youngest general agent. This shows what college graduates of the right type can do in this business, how they can build up earning power and at the same time provide for an accumulated competence for the years to come.

Graduation is a vital period in your life and you are liable to hold to the business you start in. It would be well before making a definite decision to inquire into life insurance as a career. Address, "Agency Department."
